

LADIES' AUXILIARY REUNION-RECEPTION

Mayor Bransford to Meet With the Ladies' Branch of the Party Machinery.

AT HENRY HEATH'S
IN LIBERTY PARK

Brilliant Programme Arranged for a Cordial Time; Miss Foster to Sing.

Tomorrow (Thursday) evening the Ladies' Auxiliary of the American party will have a reunion combined with a reception to Mr. Bransford, the new Mayor. The function will be held at the home of Henry Heath in Liberty park. Full arrangements are made with the street car company to take to the park all who wish to attend this occasion, which will be made one of importance and of interest to everyone who attends. The spacious lawns will be utilized; there will be an address of welcome, an oration, and as a great attraction there will be solos by Miss Hallie Foster.

The ladies have been exceedingly fortunate in getting the aid of Miss Foster, daughter of Mr. Warren Foster, the Socialist speaker. This will be her last appearance in public before going to the conservatory to pursue her musical studies. She declares herself an American party girl, and without doubt she will be welcomed at this function with a warmth that will cheer her heart. Miss Foster is well known as a lovely and charming singer. She has a multitude of friends and admirers. Professor McClellan has arranged to have her as the soloist in the California excursion to be made soon by the Ogden Tabernacle choir. She will sing all the soprano and contralto solos in the ode especially composed by Professor J. J. McClellan for the Irrigation Congress at Sacramento, and as she is the only soloist with the choir, she will also sing the final number at each of the concerts, and several others as well. Professor McClellan has expressed the highest admiration for Miss Foster's talents and is delighted to have secured her as the soloist for the party of singers from this State.

The Reception.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the American party is a portion of the regular machinery of that party, and as such will be recognized as the exponent of American party interests from the ladies' side of the organization. Black, Mrs. A. C. Caldwell, Mrs. A. J. Davis, Mrs. William Burnes, Mrs. William Nelson, Mrs. F. S. Fox, Mrs. Tom D. Pitt, Mrs. M. A. Mellen, Mrs. A. H. Little, Mrs. W. H. Wilkison, Mrs. A. J. The desire is to have everybody go and to have a reunion and reception which everyone will remember with pleasure not only during this campaign, but for years. The right hand of fellowship is out to all, no matter whether well known and recognized party adherents in the past or not. New membership is gladly received, and the ladies will welcome converts with the zeal of revivalists. Come and see, and have a good time.

STATE OF UTAH MUST BORROW MONEY AGAIN

Board of Loan Commissioners
Will Again Resort to Frenzied Financiering.

While Governor John C. Cutler is engaged in giving elaborate luncheons at the Alta club, at the expense of the State, the State's general fund has again been exhausted, and today the State Board of Loan Commissioners, of which the Governor is chairman, will hold a meeting to negotiate another loan against the day when taxes will begin to come in next fall.

Already the State has borrowed $175,000 in 1907 to pay its current running expenses, and it is paying a per cent interest on it. The loans thus far have been made from the irreducible funds of the State Land Board, and it is probable that a loan of $25,000 will be negotiated from the same source today.

As has been frequently pointed out, the State pays interest on the loans which it makes to keep up its general fund, while organs of the State administration keep hammering away at the American city administration for over-drawing its general fund when the city pays no interest on such overdraft.

In Hotel Corridors

C. M. PARKER of Lincoln, Neb., a veteran of the civil war, who, in defense of his country, left as a memento of the sacrifice he made, his left arm on one of the battlefields of the South, is a visitor in Salt Lake. Mr. Parker is a practicing attorney of thirty-seven years' standing in the capital city where he resides. In speaking with a Tribune representative in the corridor of the Knutsford hotel of Salt Lake, Mr. Parker said: "This is my first visit here since 1902, and you may believe me when I tell you that I see a vast improvement since that time. The city then appeared to be dormant, and that, too, for some years past. Now, however, it appears to be prosperous and taking on the habits of a city as rapidly as possible. It is evident that a great deal of capital is being invested here, and judging by the splendid modern improvements that are being made, the city's affairs are certainly being conducted by men of experience and progress."

When informed that the city was under the control of and being managed by a political party known as the American party, but more properly speaking a business organization, whose primary object was the rebuilding of the city, Mr. Parker said if the people of Salt Lake were alive to their interests, if they desired this city to occupy a conspicuous place among the great cities of the country, they would continue this party of progress. However, at least until its mission was fulfilled, "I see by The Tribune this morning," continued Mr. Parker, "that I am not alone in my opinion. That I am not alone in my opinion, if I must get consent of the head of the Mormon church to run again for the Senate. Does he really have to apply to the head of his church to run for political office?"

Being assured that such was the case that he was becoming candid for the Senate the first time, he had first to get the consent of the Mormon church president, that had he not done so his political aspirations would have been killed; he would have been subjected to church discipline, his apostolic robes torn from him, his pulpit crushed and humiliated, at least until his mission was fulfilled. "I see by The Tribune this morning," continued Mr. Parker, "that I am not alone in my opinion. That I am not alone in my opinion, if I must get consent of the head of the Mormon church to run again for the Senate. Does he really have to apply to the head of his church to run for political office?"

"Now, I think I can see the point. I want to say that I admire the ability and courageous fight The Tribune is making. I sent two copies of this morning—one to my wife, the other to the State Journal, published at Lincoln. The policy of this country must not be dominated by any church. But is the Mormon church a Christian institution? I attended one of their meetings the other day, but I could not detect that Christianity was any part of the theme discussed or taught."

"You reside in a city that has the distinction of being the home of that distinguished American, W. J. Bryan. Do you think he will be the Democratic nominee for President again?"

"Mr. Bryan and I are close neighbors. He is an excellent man—agreeable, affable, pleasant, and he will likely win everybody. I esteem him highly, but we are not of the same political faith. I don't know if he will be the Democratic standard bearer next year. I hardly think he is as near to the nomination now as he was thought to be six months ago. He is looking upon as another Roosevelt—much the same, except that he belongs to a different political organization."

Mr. Parker said that in view of what Roosevelt has repeatedly said, he did not see how Roosevelt could be drawn into the race. He did not believe that the President would be considered in the convention. Governor Hughes of New York, he said, was growing in public favor, and if he made no mistakes between now and the time of holding the convention, would, in his opinion, be a formidable factor to be considered in connection with the nomination for President by that body.

POSTMASTER and Mrs. John Forgie are up from Milford and are guests of the Ogden. They brought with them their little daughter, and placed her in the Holy Cross hospital, where she was operated on for appendicitis two days ago. The little girl came out of the operation nicely and is now on the way to speedy recovery. Mr. Forgie, in addition to being postmaster of Milford, is also heavily interested in mining, an industry which, he says, is flourishing in Beaver county as never before in the thirty-four years of his residence there. Mr. Forgie says that the mines owned and operated by him never looked so well. On the Nello group, he says, the mine is being put in condition to take out regular shipments. It is a copper, gold, silver and lead proposition of good shipping quality. A great many shipping mines have been developed in Star district this year, while at this time last year the producing mines could be numbered by the fingers on one hand.

"There is one thing that is encouraging in the mines of Star district," said Mr. Forgie, "and that is, there is no danger of the ore veins pinching out. They all go down, and in going down, as a general thing, improve very rapidly. This is being demonstrated in developments made in the Moscow and Burehard properties, and on the other side by the Cedar and Tallman."

"Beaver county is all right," continued Mr. Forgie, "and every man who owns a mine or even an undeveloped prospect down there is an optimist and full of confidence respecting future developments and their results."

J. H. BURFIELD of Butte, Mont., is in the city, a guest of the Ogden. Mr. Burfield is chief of the chemical and metallurgical department of the Helme interests in speaking of Butte, Mr. Burfield said that business was very quiet. There was some scarcity of skilled and, in fact, unskilled labor. The shrinkage in stocks, he said, had caught many of the Butte people, and caught them hard, but they would get over the squeeze as they had done many times before. The mines are all working to their full capacity, where sufficient labor could be obtained, and the mills were humming.

"There is no labor trouble nor will there be in the near future. Wages are good and money circulates freely," continued Mr. Burfield. "Butte is all right, and the leading mining camp of the United States."
